JUVENAL SANSO'S WORK ON DISPLAY AT MUSEUM

An exhibition of 116 works by the 34-year-old Spanish-born artist Juvenal Sanso opens February 11 at The Cleveland Museum of Art. The several oils, some ink paintings and numerous prints and drawings will be displayed in the Museum's Prints and Drawings Gallery (Gallery F) through March 29.

The exhibition was selected by Leona E. Prasse and Louiss S. Richards, Associate Curators of Prints and Drawings at the Museum, from Sanso's studio in Paris, now his permanent home. Miss Prasse and Miss Richards also prepared the accompanying illustrated catalog which has a complete compilation of every print Sanso has done. The Museum show includes more than half of all Sanso's prints as well as recent oils, ink paintings, and drawings.

Sanso's boyhood was spent in Manila during World War II and his main inspirational sources include this city as well as Brittany.

The Print Club of Cleveland has chosen, as its annual presentation print, Sanso's LUEURS, a landscape "constructed from a distillation of Brittany surf, Philippine root forms and exotic plants and rocks...".

Sanso attended the School of Fine Arts at the University of the Philippines in Manila for three years and then studied at the Accademia di Belli Arti and the Accademia della Medaglia in Rome, and also at the Ecols Nationale Superieure des Beaux-Arts in Paris.

In 1958 he painted frescos at the Palazzo Dario in Venice and since 1956 has participated in nine one- or two-man exhibitions.

Mr. Sanso has been invited to attend the Print Club's private opening of his exhibition at the Museum, Monday evening, February 10.
